

Biography

Randolph L. Roig, MD, FAAPMR

Dr. Randy Roig is a resident of New Orleans and is a summa cum laude graduate of the Tulane School of Engineering and the LSU School of Medicine in New Orleans. He completed his physical medicine and rehabilitation (PM&R) residency in 1996, serving as chief resident. He holds American Board of Medical Specialties (ABMS) certifications in PM&R, spinal cord injury medicine, and pain medicine. He is presently practicing at the Southeast Louisiana Veterans Health Care System, where he is the Associate Chief of Staff for Education and Designated Education Officer, Assistant Chief of the PM&R Service, and Chief of the Pain Medicine Section. He is on the faculty of both LSU in New Orleans and Tulane University, as well as Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia. He serves as the program director for the pain medicine fellowship training program and clinician co-director of the course in musculoskeletal medicine and dermatology at LSU. He is volunteer Executive Editor of Rehab in Review, a monthly journal for the field of physiatry published by Emory University.

Dr. Roig has served on numerous nonprofit boards and committees within the medical community, including the Association of American Medical Colleges and the American Academy of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation (AAPM&R). He also serves as co-chair of the Medical/Legal Interprofessional Committee of the Louisiana State Medical Society (LSMS) and the Louisiana State Bar Association. He further serves on the Tulane Institutional Review Board for Biomedical Research. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the LSMS, the Orleans Parish Medical Society, the AAPM&R, the American Academy of Pain

Medicine, the Association of Academic Physiatrists, Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Medical Society, and the Gold Humanism Honor Society. In 2017, he received the LSU Faculty Assembly Outstanding Mentor Award, having received the Leonard Tow Humanism in Medicine Award in 2016.